FEBRUARY 27, 1913.

A meeting of the Society was held at the library hall, Thursday, February 27, 1913, at 2.30 P. M.

The librarian, Mr. Nathan Goold, read a report of accessions to the library and cabinet.

LIBRARIAN'S REPORT.

FEBRUARY 27, 1913.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The last report of your librarian was November 20, 1912. The library is making the usual advances in each department. We have had the news of three Maine town histories being produced since my last report. We have that of Garland, by Lyndon Oak, Esq., of 401 pages, and that of Jay, by Rev. Benjamin Lawrence, A.M., of 93 pages. They are good histories of the towns of which they are written. Then we have a notice of the issuance of volume two of the history of City of Belfast, by the late Hon. Joseph Williamson, of Belfast. It will be a book of 700 pages, like the first volume, and will be similar to it. Belfast will have the best history of any town in the State. It is to be issued this spring.

We have added to the library since my last report 128 bound books and 195 pamphlets, making a total of 323. We have had 246 gifts, 49 exchanges, and 28 purchased, and have had several additions to our cabinet, as is given in its place.

HENRY LELAND CHAPMAN

Henry Leland Chapman, one of the most distinguished and most highly esteemed members of this Society, died at his home in Brunswick, February 24, 1913. Professor Chapman was born in Bethel, Maine, July 26, 1845, and was the son of Elbridge and Delinda Kimball Chapman. He came of an ancestry distinguished for piety and the sterling qualities which in public and private life have developed at its best the New England type of character. He had in his youth the usual experience of the hardy stock reared among the rugged hills of Oxford County. After having been duly instructed in his earlier years in the ways of industry and the learning of the common school, he went to Gorham Seminary then in the full flower of its influence as an educational institution. From the seminary he graduated in 1862, and it is remembered as an earnest of his subsequent attractive style of address that he was recalled to deliver his graduating part a second time. He entered Bowdoin College in the class of 1866. In college he was distinguished for his social qualities and his literary ability and there he graduated with high honor. From the college he went to Bangor Theological Seminary from which institution he graduated in 1869, and was immediately elected tutor at Bowdoin College. The college which had been depleted by the Civil War was then just beginning its new career under the efficient presidency of Dr. Samuel Harris. From this time the life work of Professor Chapman was incorporated with that of Bowdoin and of its subsequent history he might well be entitled to say magna pars fui. For a year he was tutor in Latin and Mathematics and was then advanced to the position of instructor. In 1871, he became assistant professor of Latin and the next year was made full professor of Latin which position he held until 1875. In that year he became professor of Rhetoric, Oratory and English Literature which position he filled until 1897, when he was made professor of the English Language and Literature.

The department of English Literature was his chosen field, and in his broad and accurate knowledge of the English language, its writers and its literature, and in his ability to impart such knowledge and to awaken interest and enthusiasm among the students in his classes he had few equals anywhere. This position he occupied with ability ripened and impressive almost to the time of his decease. Of character straightforward in its manliness, of disposition always helpful, he came to be known, as the years went on, the best beloved of Bowdoin by faculty, students and alumni. The appearance of Professor Chapman at the Commencement dinners of the college where he regularly deaconed the old college hymn, and the ovation which he at such time received, became one of the noted college incidents.

Professor Chapman was a good citizen and took an active part in public affairs but always declined to be a candidate for public office. He was trustee of the State Normal schools from 1890 until the time of his decease and was for about twenty-five years president of the trustees of Bangor Theological Seminary. He took great interest in the doings of the Maine Historical Society of which he was for many years an honored member, and we shall long miss his genial and helpful presence. He filled every position which came to him with distinguished ability and conscientious faithfulness. His memory will always remain as a priceless heritage of the college to whose service his life work was devoted, to this Society so long one of the chosen objects of his regard, and to the great constituency public and private, upon whom the influence of his life and labors have made an impression which eternity alone can measure.

AUGUSTUS F. MOULTON.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON SOWDON BEQUEST.

BRUNSWICK, MAINE, June 24, 1913.

Mr. President and Members of the Maine Historical Society:

Your committee having in charge the erection of the monument to Col. Arthur Noble in the town of Nobleborough, Maine, has the honor to report progress as follows:

The bequest of $2,000.00 by the will of the late Arthur John Clark Sowdon of Boston, has been received from the executor of his estate, and a special deposit of same has been made in the Canal National Bank, Portland, where it is drawing interest at the rate of four per cent per annum.

There is much public interest and local pride in the matter among the inhabitants of Nobleborough. The town has voted to accept the monument and it has been arranged that the townspeople shall furnish and grade the lot, thus leaving the whole amount of the bequest available for the monument, the title of the lot to be held by the town. A site has been selected on a commanding position on the main highway between Bath and Rockland, at the intersection of the county road and back meadow road. It is at what may be called the civic center of the town. Town Hall, Grange Hall, Baptist Meeting House and Post Office are grouped about it and it is about one mile distant from the Nobleborough Station on the Maine Central Railroad. The lot is part of the property of the First Baptist Church of Nobleborough, and has been deeded to the town by the church society.

FUNERAL OF NATHAN GOOLD.

MONDAY, MARCH 2, 1914.

The funeral of Nathan Goold, Esq., the first librarian and curator in the Society's new building, was held on Monday afternoon, March 2, 1914, from the library room which was for several years the scene of his labors. The coffin was placed near his own desk, banked with flowers, among them a fine piece from the members of the Society. Members of this Society, the Sons of the American Revolution, and the Society of the American Wars, besides many private citizens, were present to pay the last tribute to a man who was high in the esteem of all.

Rev. Joseph Battell Shepherd and Rev. Canon Philip Schuyler were the officiating clergymen and the impressive burial service of the Episcopal church was read. A high tribute was paid to the dead in a eulogy by Hon. Augustus F. Moulton, and an appreciation written by Hon. James Phinney Baxter, who was confined to his house on account of an accident, was read by Canon Schuyler. The hymns were sung by the Schubert Quartet, and following the ceremony the body was taken to Evergreen Cemetery, whence it was later removed to Windham.

Henry Deering, Hon. Augustus F. Moulton, I. Fred. Sturdivant, Philip F. Turner, Frederick S. Vaill and Frederick O. Conant were the pall bearers.

In his eulogy Hon. Augustus F. Moulton said :

As we meet here this afternoon to pay our last earthly tribute of respect and regard to Nathan Goold, for many years our companion and friend, the place itself is suggestive of the words of Moore, "The harp that once through Tara's halls the soul of music shed, now hangeth mute on Tara's walls, for Oh, the soul hath fled." Everything about us is a reminder of him whose earthly form is with us again in this familiar room, but in slumber so profound and in repose so peaceful that we would hardly wish to awaken him if we could. The building itself was the fulfillment of his almost lifelong desire that the Society to which both he and his honored father had given so much of earnest attention and support should have a worthy home of its own. The collections, the pictures and the books with which he had passed so many hours had become to him almost like his comrades and daily helpers. The adjoining home of the family and the poet, known wherever English speech is heard, was a part of his daily conversation and concern. To those of us who were in the way of meeting him the very atmosphere seems permeated with the thought of one who although no longer responsive with living voice yet speaks in memory from everything around. It is altogether appropriate and in accordance with his expressed wish that in this place should be performed the funeral rites which mark the ending of his earthly career.

Although Mr. Goold had rounded out his 67th year his personal appearance and cheerful address always gave the impression of youth. He was a Portland boy and loved his native town and its people. It was always a pleasure to him to recall the story of its past, and the recollections of his own youth here. The days when he attended Master Staples's school were a vivid picture in his mind. It was he who first suggested giving the name of his old teacher to the school where he taught and which now bears his name. As a boy his tastes ran to mechanics more than to literature, and for over twenty years he gave his time to business. He had inherited from his father, William Goold, of honored memory, a taste for historical research, and had read and studied widely along those lines. In his later years he gave up active business, and became librarian and curator for the Maine Historical Society and for other like associations. He was one of the organizers and original members of the society of the Sons of the American Revolution. For years he belonged to the Fraternity Club and to other literary and patriotic organizations. He was a persistent investigator of the affairs of the early times, and traced out and made record of the location of the old streets and landmarks of Portland. For his researches concerning the naval career of the Revolutionary hero, Paul Jones, and his gallant ship, the "Ranger," he was honored with membership in the Paul Jones Society of Portsmouth. To his long and patient investigation of the old Revolutionary muster rolls was largely due the discovery of the fact that one-tenth of the heroic army which under Washington endured the privations of Valley Forge came from this immediate locality. His historical work covered so many subjects and was so well known that detail in that regard is wholly unnecessary. At historical conventions and gatherings in various States he was a well known and welcome guest, and he became as of course one of the most conspicuous members of the Society in whose rooms we now meet.

To those who knew him best Nathan Gould was a fast friend and a genial companion. He was always upright and honorable. He hated shams and loved the truth, and had always the courage of his convictions. Patriotism with him was a deep and abiding principle. From his knowledge of his country's past he gained appreciation of its present and confidence in its future. By his passing onward to the Great Beyond, the Society sustains a loss which is well nigh irreparable. The community, too, is poorer by the departure of a good and loyal citizen. To his relatives and friends there still remains the consolation of the living recollection of his life and works so written upon the tablets of heart and mind that it will never be effaced. Death comes to all and all seasons are its own. Its mystery is as old as the story of humanity itself. The body passes; of that we know it is dust to dust. But it has been well said that those words were not spoken of the soul, and we cannot believe that the accomplishments of mind and heart can ever be wasted or lost. Omar Khayyam said in hopeless vein :

“ The world will turn when we are earth
 As though we had not come nor gone ;
 There was no lack before our birth
 When we are gone there will be none.”

But with the rising of the Star of Bethlehem there came to us as a new and abiding faith the belief so well expressed by the poet that our friend and brother loved so well, the belief that brings comfort to us all to-day :

“ There is no death, what seems so is transition.
 This life of mortal breath
 Is but the gateway of the port Elysian
 Whose portals we call death.”

Mr. Baxter's appreciation read by Canon Schuyler was as follows :

It seems fitting on this sad occasion that as President of the Maine Historical Society I should add a few words to those of Mr. Goold's other friends, which I would have been glad to have spoken in person but for the fact that I am unable to do so.

The loss of Mr. Goold will be deeply felt not only by us but by the community in which he was so well known. When he became librarian of this Society he brought to it the inherited love of history which his father conspicuously displayed. No more fitting appointment to the position could have been made, and Mr. Goold entered upon his duties with an ambition to advance the interests of the Society by every means in his power. Our library and collections were his first care, and upon assuming office he at once opened a correspondence with other librarians, and with people whom he thought might aid him in securing valuable books and relics to enrich the Society's possessions. His success in this undertaking is a matter of common knowledge; indeed, when we look about us his handiwork is to be seen on every side. His interest in the Longfellow house never flagged; he not only superintended the management of this most interesting museum but was always on hand to give personal information to visitors from abroad; in fact, in this home of memories, Mr. Goold's presence will long abide. Not only did he attend to his varied duties, but he devoted many spare moments to historical writing, and no one acquainted with his work can fail to realize that he was a most careful and painstaking student, never allowing himself to be led aside by attractive theories, but pursuing the simpler, if less alluring, paths of fact.

Those who were with him at the last annual meeting of the Society at Brunswick which he attended well remember, though he was then far from well, with what care and particularity he performed the duties which devolved upon him. It should be especially gratifying to his friends that during the closing years of his life he occupied a position than which none could have afforded him greater content and happiness.

He has left behind him worthy work which will hardly be forgotten. It would be worth while for this to be said of any of us.

ANNUAL MEETING.

JUNE 26, 1914.

The annual meeting of the Society was held in the lecture room of Hubbard Hall, Brunswick, Friday, 26th June, 1914, at 2.00 P. M.

The meeting was called to order by the president.

The recording secretary being absent, William D. Patterson was appointed to act as such pro tem.

Members present: James P. Baxter, Frederick O. Conant, Henry Deering, George A. Emery, Almer J. Huston, Henry Johnson, Fritz H. Jordan, George T. Little, Prentice C. Manning, Alfred Mitchell, William D. Patterson, Barrett Potter, Archie L. Talbot, Henry S. Webster, Joseph Wood.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and approved, after which the president said:

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

Since our last meeting our librarian, Mr. Goold, has died. Mr. Goold was a careful student of history, and found himself amid most congenial surroundings in our library. His work for the Society was invaluable, and I think I am justified in saying that posterity will owe him a debt of gratitude for his well directed and persistent efforts in securing gifts of valuable books and relics for its collections.

The standing committee, some time after his death, by advice from many sources, elected Miss Evelyn L. Gilmore, librarian of the Lewiston Public Library, to fill his place until the annual meeting. Miss Gilmore, having unfinished work to do, preferred to begin her term of office at the commencement of our official year. Perhaps I should say that Miss Gilmore is in every way competent to catalogue and arrange the library and manuscripts, which is greatly needed, and to advance the interests of the Society in many directions. I think the Society is fortunate in having so accomplished a candidate for the position.

I wish to recommend, in order to facilitate the work of the Society, the selection of a Book and Library committee, the librarian to be chairman; a committee on Papers and Essays; a committee on the collection of Epitaphs; and a committee whose duty it shall be to correspond with members of this Society living in counties having no local historical organization, to interest them in forming societies in their respective counties.

Some years ago I formulated a plan to secure the formation of an historical society in every county in the State. Several members of this Society were appointed to awaken an interest in this plan in their respective counties, and several societies were organized, which are still flourishing. I am hoping that their example may be followed by other counties, and active County Historical Societies formed. Every county in the State should have a society to gather its past, and to preserve its present history. As such work should perpetuate the names of its past and present residents, all should be interested in it.

These societies should be allied to the Maine Historical Society, and their members eligible to membership in it, and reports of their doings reported at its annual meetings. Such an organization of the historical interests and activities of the State would be of the greatest importance.

A tercentenary of the advent of Capt. John Smith to this coast is to be celebrated by the people of Monhegan early in August, and this Society has been invited to participate in the exercises. If accepted, I would advise the appointment of a committee to confer with the Monhegan committee of arrangements.

The report of the assistant librarian, Miss Ethel Paige Hall, was read by Fritz H. Jordan, Esq., and it was accepted and placed on file.

The report of the auditing committee on the treasurer's account for the year ending in June, 1913, was read and accepted.

The annual report of the treasurer, Fritz H. Jordan, was read by him, and it was accepted and placed on file.

The annual report of the biographer and corresponding secretary, William D. Patterson, was read by him and accepted and placed on file.

The report of the standing committee was read by Henry Deering, Esq., and it was accepted and placed on file.

Fritz H. Jordan, Esq., read the report of the committee on the Wadsworth-Longfellow house and the report of the committee on monument to Col. Arthur Noble, both of which reports were accepted and placed on file.

The Society proceeded to the election of new members, when Mr. Wood was appointed a committee to distribute ballots and to receive, sort and count the same and report the result, whereupon the ballot was taken and the committee reported the election of resident members as follows :

Boyd Bartlett, Castine.	Rev. Melvin Sherburne Hutchins,
Alan L. Bird, Rockland.	Phillips.
Charles A. Flagg, Bangor.	Edward Clarence Jones, Portland.
Dr. Alonzo M. Garcelon, Lewiston.	Philip Ingraham Jones, Portland.
Samuel M. Hall, Saco.	Philip Lewis, M. D., Gorham.
Ira G. Hersey, Houlton.	Edward B. MacAllister, Rockland.
Charles Lyman Hutchinson,	Thomas D. Sale, Portland.
Portland.	Professor Jonathan Y. Stanton, Lewiston.

The following communication from Hubbard W. Bryant, Esq., was read by Mr. Jordan :

Mr. President and Fellow Members of the Maine Historical Society:

Since the year 1865 (a half century) it has been my privilege and good fortune to be enrolled as a member of the Society; and when the library was moved to Portland in 1881, I was known, for twenty-five years, as librarian; since then, 1906, as recording secretary. The years have passed happily and the associations have been most congenial. For these pleasant years of association I feel profoundly grateful, and I trust that the coming years may be prosperous and that the Society may increase in numbers and usefulness.

This is the first time in all these years I have missed an annual meeting or any regular meeting of the Society, and it is my regret that I cannot be with you to-day. But the time has come to say "halt," and farewell to you all.

Sincerely and fraternally yours,

HUBBARD W. BRYANT.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Bryant for his valued services to the Society and regret at his retirement from the office so long and faithfully filled by him was unanimously adopted.

On motion of Archie L. Talbot, Esq., seconded by Henry Deering, Esq., Hubbard W. Bryant, Esq., was unanimously elected an honorary member of the Society.

The President appointed Messrs. Manning, Huston and Conant a committee to nominate a board of officers for election for the ensuing year. The committee reported the following nominations :

President—James P. Baxter.

Vice President—George T. Little.

Treasurer—Fritz H. Jordan.

The committee on union of libraries, appointed pursuant to the foregoing resolution, consists of President Baxter, Henry Deering and Fritz H. Jordan.

On motion of Henry Deering, Esq., the recommendation of the standing committee that a volume of collections be printed was referred to the committee on publications.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON WADSWORTH- LONGFELLOW HOUSE.

BRUNSWICK, MAINE, June 26, 1914.

Your committee having in charge the Wadsworth-Longfellow House has the honor to report that the season of 1913 was a successful one. The house was open from June 23d to October 11th, and was visited during that time by nearly nine thousand people. The house was in charge of Miss Margaret E. Harding and an able corps of assistants. The income of the house, as shown by the treasurer's report, has been sufficient to cover all running expenses, insurance, interest on debt, to make a slight reduction on the debt, and to devote a considerable sum towards the running expenses of the library.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON SOWDON BEQUEST.

BRUNSWICK, MAINE, June 26, 1914.

Mr. President and Members of the Maine Historical Society:

Your committee having in charge the erection of the monument to Colonel Arthur Noble, in the town of Nobleborough, Maine, has the honor to report as follows:

The contractors, Messrs. Geo. W. Leighton & Co., completed and erected the monument on October 23d last, and it was dedicated, with appropriate ceremonies, on October 25th.

At the ceremonies, Hon. James P. Baxter, President of the Maine Historical Society, presided and made the historical address. The invocation and benediction were by Rev. Robert G. Greengrass, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Nobleborough. Judge Clarence Hale spoke of Arthur John Clark Sowdon, the donor, and his ancestor, Colonel Arthur Noble. The monument was unveiled by Mrs. Richard Webb, president of the Maine Society of Colonial Dames. The history of the monument and address of presentation had been assigned to Fritz H. Jordan. On account of Mr. Jordan's absence through illness, the address was read by Judge Clarence Hale. The speech of acceptance on behalf of the town was by James E. Mulligan, Esq., chairman of the Board of Selectmen of the town of Nobleborough.

The townspeople provided a bountiful collation. The weather was quite inclement. Notwithstanding this, there was a large attendance of the inhabitants of Nobleborough and adjacent towns.

The monument is an obelisk of Maine granite, twenty-eight feet in height, and occupies a commanding position in the civic centre of the town on the main highway between Bath and Rockland.

Respectfully submitted,
FRITZ H. JORDAN,

To the President and Members of the Maine Historical Society:

I have the honor to submit the report for the librarian and curator of the Maine Historical Society for the year ending June 18, 1914. Mr. Nathan Goold, whose death took place February 27, 1914, was incapacitated by illness from performing his duties of librarian in May, 1913; since that time, by arrangement of the Standing Committee, the library has been practically under my charge.
